'Young Blood' Featured On LG Chamber Of Commerce Ballots

Simpler Words Needed on Ballots

At election time, this column published an "understandable list" of the twenty-two propositions voters faced in the November general elections.

The list was formidable when viewed as a ballot. And worse, many of the arguments were not understandable to the average voter.

The column presented a "bob-tailed" ballot with key words reduced to understandable language. This seemed to serve the purpose among those fed back opinions to this newspaper.

From an unexpected source came a supportive communication. It was from State Senator H. L. Richardson, of Los Angeles, who has a fine turn with words.

Picking up some of his complaint: "Polling places were easy to find last election. All you had to do was walk towards the sound of grumbling people."

"They were unhappy Californians, filling the polling booths, trying to decipher the ballot propositions. The major source of irritation was the language legislators used to argue for or against them," he said.

Senator Richardson notes that most legislators' rhetoric sounds alike and suggests that it is like any other group that sees a lot of each other, they develop a language of their own.

Administrative jargon is an important tool in a political portfolio. It seems to say what it is intended to, but it gets the legislature off the hook if the situation demands.

Some call it legalese — a language where you know the words but the sentences confuse you. It has been defined as composition, apparently English, which can or cannot be interpreted as meaning, and/or meaning more or less, rather than what it seems to mean.

Richardson admits that government documents, generally, drives the citizen up his dictionary. He cites examples he culled from the stacks of reports received by every legislator every day.

"Establishing dialogue" or "opening lines of communication"—this usually means you must listen to my side of the argument until you agree with me. At that point you have established (another one) "clear rapport."

An elegant loophole is "viable alternatives." It means—or may not mean—there's got to be a better way so we can get it past the Governor without his vetoing it, and/or having the public on your neck for your stupidity.

"Innovative program" is a slightly different approach to last year's defeated legislation. "Continuum" is a series, one after another and they use it to label a program defeated more than two years running and the department wants it introduced again as an innovative program.

"Bifurcated." Why don't they simply say divided?

"Over-all image." A program that people are disgusted with and government propaganda is needed to make it more palatable.

"Restructuring." The whole thing laid an egg and a new staff has been appointed to improve the bill's over-all image.

"Heterogeneous" means too many cooks etc. etc. It follows that the bill will have to be split into six or seven to get them out of committee. Or, they won't take it in large doses so we'll have to dribble it into them.

Then there are the overworked nonentities. "Meaningful" and "purposeful." The are linguistic fungi which mean absolutely nothing.

Language, Richardson notes, can be made to dupe or falsify. Or it can clarify and explain.

It is the desire of most California voters to understand the issues on which they are called to make an intelligent decision.

Legislation could do that without cost or pain simply by using simple words and letting the words mean what the dictionary says.

It's do or die time for the proposed 6-acre park in Lemon Grove.

The Lemon Grove Planning Association will meet next Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium at Golden Avenue School in an effort to convince the Local Agency Formation Commission that there is support for the park.

Planning Association Chairman Jim Dorman indicated that all members of the association should attend the meeting to voice support for the project, and that any member of the community interested in helping attain the park also attend.

The park project began last year when the Department of Housing and Urban Development agreed to provide matching funds for the construction of a six-acre park at Mt. Vernon and Massachusetts.

The requirements called for local funds to provide half the cost of the park construction, with the remainder to be financed by HUD. In order to attain local funds, the planning association requested that a county service area be formed.

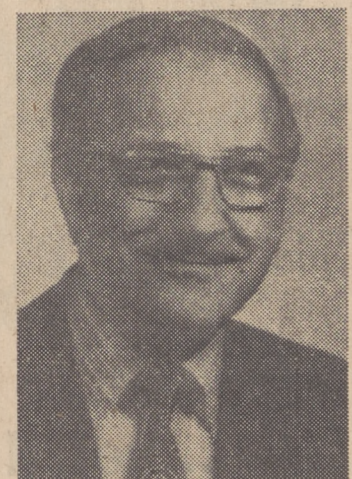

Before the service area can be formed, and the park constructed, it must first be approved by LAFCO and the Board of Supervisors. LAFCO held a hearing in December to consider the service area, but continued the hearing until January 15 because of an apparent lack of support.

In order to attain approval, the planning association must convince LAFCO that there is indeed support in the community for the park project.

If there is not enough support voiced at the planning association meeting, it is doubtful that the park project will get the go-ahead.

Services Set For Jack May

Services will be at 3:30 p.m. today at Greenwood Mortuary for Jack May, 51, of 2850 Skyline dr., Lemon Grove, who died Tuesday at a local hospital.

Jack May

May, a prominent local CPA and a leader in the San Diego Jewish community, was immediate past president of the San Diego chapter of the California Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He was a partner in the CPA firm of Johnson, May, and Sussman, which recently merged with Seidman and Seidman. He was previously associated with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell, and Co.

May was active in the San Diego Jewish community as past president of the Beth Jacob Congregation and past president of the San Diego Lodge of B'nai B'rith. A member of the board of directors of the San Diego Jewish Community Center, he also was active in Big Brothers and Kiwanis.

Survivors include his wife, Ann; a daughter, Geraldine; a son, Larry; two brothers, Dr. Alvin May of Chula Vista and Samuel May of New York; and two sisters, Jenny Paul and Mae Forman, both of New York.

play for the store. Miss Kotnik has been employed at the shop since September and is also taking a full load of classes at Grossmont College.

'New Face' Seen As Lemon Grove Future

1973 will be a good year for Lemon Grove if things go the way three of the town's leaders hope.

Mike Carlen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, sees a good year for local businesses in 1973, as well as for business across the nation.

Carlen said that he hopes that the chamber will grow even larger than it is currently and that a good board of directors will be a determining factor in the chamber's leadership.

One thing that Carlen sees as a problem is the lack of support for the Old Time Days Association, the group responsible for putting together Lemon Grove's annual OTD Parade and other celebrations during May.

The need there is for more volunteers to help plan the affair. Only a handful of persons have been able to attend OTD meetings recently in preparation for the gala.

Bob Russell, past president of the chamber and now leading the Lemon Grove Community Betterment Committee, a coalition of representatives from local service clubs, said that Lemon Grove will get a new face in 1973.

The end of the year is expected to bring the long-awaited Broadway improvements, which call for a leveling of Broadway and the installation of curbs, medians, and left turn pockets along one of the county's busiest stretches of road.

With the Costabella off ramp planned, Russell said, Broadway will get even more traffic, and it will be important to have a safer Broadway.

With the safer and more pleasant drive along Broadway, the Community Betterment Committee is hoping to get approval for landscaping projects along Broadway and the railroad right-of-way, which will enable the community to put forth its best face.

Once the town gets its new face, Russell said, the local service clubs will need to work together to attain its goals, including making Lemon Grove a cleaner place.

In the past, each club has worked toward projects, but in the future it'll take combined efforts to attain desirable goals, he said. He cited an example in the Broadway improvement project.

The project for a long time was mostly in the hands of the chamber of commerce. In 1972, however, the community betterment committee began working toward achieving the project and has met with success so far.

A future goal, Russell said, will be after the Broadway improvements are completed, when the service clubs will have to organize together to clean up and straighten out the parking lots between Kempf and Olive.

Chuck holes will have to be filled and re-striping will be necessary, and it is hoped that some form of maintenance can be secured to keep the parking lots in good shape.

Some of the problems Russell said might have to be avoided include poor planning for land use, upkeep of the town, and a lack of support for the planning association and other groups.

Explaining the problems with land use, Russell indicated that there "isn't enough land left even now for what we need."

Jim Dorman, chairman of the Lemon Grove Planning Association, offered a forecast for stabilized business in 1973 after a good growth year in 1972.

He said that the merchants he has talked to in the past few months have indicated that business is prospering and that it has been a good year.

His hopes are that Lemon Grove can secure county service areas for needed projects in the new year.

Two county service areas are currently before the Local Agency Formation Commission, where they must be approved before being considered by the County Board of Supervisors. The proposals will include making Lemon Grove

Busy Barbara Kotnik Is Student, Employee And Beauty Titlist

What do beauty queens do during their spare time?

Well, some of them probably ride horses or go out on dates, but Miss Lemon Grove is another breed altogether.

Barbara Kotnik has so little spare time between carrying a full load of classes at Grossmont College and working 20 hours per week at Marsi's in College Grove that she is unable to do much more than keep up with her activities and still get in a little sewing, which is her hobby.

She recently finished several Christmas gifts on her sewing machine, but time was limited because she was working more hours at Marsi's because of the holiday rush.

She has been employed at the women's shop since September, and is already drawing praise from the people she works for.

Gail Boudreau, assistant manager of the shop, indicated that Barbara is pleasant to work with and is good at coordinating merchandise. "She has a flare for fashions," the assistant manager said.

Miss Kotnik, 18-year old former employee of San Diego Stadium, said that her job is helpful in working toward her goal for future employment in the textile field, possibly as a clothing teacher on the high school level.

Her attitude is greatly similar to her situation as a student and employee. A most important aspect of her life, she said, is setting new goals after reaching others.

One of her goals now is to "teach men to sew." She was quick to disclaim any connection with "women's lib", but conceded that the movement has its points. She merely recognizes that sewing is a fine activity for men and women, but that men are mostly deprived of the skill.

In connect with her role as Miss Lemon Grove, Barbara has been hard at work preparing a scrapbook of activities she has gone through, which she plans to give to the 1973 queen, who will be selected in April.

"That way the new Miss Lemon Grove will be able to tell in advance what the busy times of the year will be and

Support Sought For Auditorium

The Grossmont Community Concert Association's auditorium committee last week launched a drive to encourage the trustees of the Grossmont Community College Board of Education to go ahead with proposed plans to build an auditorium in El Cajon.

According to an open letter to all citizen's of the Heartland area from Virginia Hawk, auditorium committee chairman, an auditorium has been sought for ten years with little or no progress.

Mrs. Hawk said that $700,000 from a community service tax and a 1965 bond issue has been set aside for the project. Additionally, the City of El Cajon has committed a matching sum should the auditorium be constructed in the proposed "superblock" development in El Cajon.

The college district earlier balked at the superblock idea, noting that it was not legal to build with school money on land that is not owned by the school.

College Superintendent Robert Burnham indicated that he has studied the proposal and will make a recommendation to the board at its regular January 8 meeting, with action expected at the January 22 meeting.

Nominations In For Board Of Directors

By John Nicholson

A good supply of "young blood" and excellent new leadership will be featured on the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors ballots, which will be mailed Friday to all members of the chamber.

Five vacancies on the board will be filled in the election, with successful candidates announced at this month's meeting three weeks from now.

A nominating committee of Bob Russell, Jim Dorman and Al Woods announced that ten candidates have been selected to vie for five seats on the board.

The announcement came at last Thursday's meeting of the chamber.

The five directors coming up for re-election are those held by Frenchy Faucher, Rosemary Johnston, Johnny Johnson, Jim Boyd, and Don Minnick.

Of the five, only Johnny Johnson will seek re-election. Minnick moved to another community, Faucher is retiring from his job as Lemon Grove Postmaster, and Jim Boyd and Rosemary Johnston listed personal reasons for not seeking a space on the ballot.

Candidates are Johnny Johnson, manager of RCP Company locally; Jack Foy, of Magic Carpet; Richard Norquist, manager of Southern California First National Bank; Les Cleer, of Cleer Signs; Del Lake, of DelRon's; Griff Clark, of San Diego Pet Hospital; Wanda Lowe, of Pacific Finance; Frank Drongowski, local oral surgeon; Chuck Winters, of Lucky Yamaha; and Dan Cornman, of the Horseshoe Tavern.

Bob Russell, in listing the candidates, indicated that Johnny Johnson and Del Lake were among the top choices. Johnson, who was selected to fill a vacancy on the board a few weeks ago, has been involved in several projects and has expressed an eagerness to work. Lake, past president of the LG Kiwanis Club, has been an outstanding member of the chamber and has been active at meetings and in special projects.

Qualifications of other candidates were also noted by Russell.

Jack Foy, who has been in business locally with sales and service of carpets and rugs, has been a good worker in the chamber and the community.

Norquist, who is new in town, recently took over as manager of So. Calif. First National Bank. He could be an asset to the chamber, as a financial expert.

Les Cleer is a longtime member of the chamber who has been active in other organizations. He is incoming president of the Lemon Grove Lions Club and has worked on community affairs for many years.

Griff Clark, local veterinarian, is a past president of the Lemon Grove Rotary Club and would add experience and excellent leadership to the chamber. He has also spent much time on chamber and community business.

Wanda Lowe, a new member of the chamber, is also a member of the Soroptimists Club. She has excellent potential as a working member of the board, Russell said.

Another new young member of the community is Dr. Frank Drongowski, the town's only oral surgeon. Drongowski has shown an eagerness to contribute efforts to the chamber and could become a good leader.

Youths Charged With Burglary Of School

Two juveniles were arrested last week and charged with burglary after deputies determined that they had made an illegal entry into the auditorium at Golden Avenue School in Lemon Grove.

According to reports from the Sheriff's Department, deputies on a routine check of the school noted that bicycles had been parked on the school grounds after dark last Tuesday.

An investigation led to the apprehension of the two suspects, who later confessed to the crime.

The suspects indicated that they found the door to the principal's office unlocked, went in, and found a set of keys in a cabinet in the office.

They took the keys and came back to the school after dark, then entered the school auditorium. Nothing was stolen.

Hospital Turns Patients Away

Overcrowded conditions have finally caught up with the space available at Grossmont Hospital, which is now turning some patients away from the hospital, according to hospital administrator Ronald Dahlgren.

The problem which is forcing the hospital to deny admittance to about a dozen persons each week, is mainly centered in the medical, surgical, and orthopedic sections, Dahlgren said.

Those sections are at about 88 per cent capacity, Dahlgren said, but no more patients can be put in rooms because certain patients have contagious diseases and must be isolated, the hospital can't put men and women patients in the same rooms, and there is also a smoker-non-smoker problem.

A hospital expansion project, recently approved by the Comprehensive Health Planning Association, will add about 100 beds to those sections, with construction to get underway near the end of the fiscal year.

The $16 million project will be completed in about three and one half years, Dahlgren said.

Faucher Retirement Tickets Available

Tickets are still available to the retirement dinner Jan. 14 for Lemon Grove Postmaster F. R. "Frenchy" Faucher.

The affair, sponsored by the community in coordination with post office employees will be held at the Elks Lodge in El Cajon.

Dinner will be immediately following the Superbowl game —about 4 p.m. and will be preceded by a cocktail period. The game may be seen at the club on a 23-inch color teevee before dinner.

Mrs. Faucher, who served with her husband during his 23 years of service is also retiring. Tickets are $5.25 and may be obtained from Nate Hale, assistant postmaster. His number is 466-3263.

Dear Editor:

You are trying to find the money to keep the Youth Center in Lemon Grove operating. I can tell you where this money could be developed from without lowering the services to the tax payer.

The County Building Department has a dozen or so men who are behind the scenes keeping about 15 building inspectors in line. When J. Waldrep was chief, he and Elven Olson operated the department themselves and the two of them did the work that the dozen or more do now. Why not transfer some of this excess meat to Lemon Grove to look after the other kids.

Most of the new Inspectors are kids or not far from kids so they should work out all right.

Name Withheld

James Gilshian, deputy department engineer in charge of building inspection, said that the department now has 67 people of which 24 are inspectors and 4 supervisory.

Between 1960-1967 the department had a reputation for terrible service and poor, at best, communication with the Board of Supervisors and contractors. Additionally, the department had a deficit of a million dollars. The inspectors comprised moonlighters and part-timers.

Today, the department is solvent and 44,000 permits (one every 2½-3 minutes) are processed each year. — Editor.

Dear Editor:

The week of January 7-13 is National Education Week on Smoking. January 11 is the ninth anniversary of the issuing of the original 1964 Report to the Surgeon General.

As you probably know, San Diego County has become the "Smoking Education Capital of the Country." Not only because of the smoking Research project through the San Diego County Medical Society, but also because of an important model teaching unit on the heart and lungs under study by the Cajon Valley School District. These projects are well known in medical and health education circles throughout the country, and even the world.

As you know, the problem of cigarette smoking continues as a major health hazard in this country, taking some 300,000 lives prematurely each year.

We have found over the years that scare tactics do not work in trying to get people to quit smoking — or even to discourage them from starting. What works better, we find, is to accent the positive. Thus, this year's theme, "Yes! There are 5 Things You Can Do About Smoking."

Regards and Happy New Year,

Learn Spanish The Easy Way

Hardison's Telespanish

By JAMES HARDISON

Words are not always placed in the same sequence in Spanish as in English speech. This means that we say equivalent words but they will not always occur in the same order from one language to the other. For example, to express the idea of a "green house," we use two words, "green" followed by "house." In Spanish, the words are "verde" (green) and "casa" (house). They occur in speech together as "casa verde" (green house) which is reverse order to their English equivalents.

Another interesting example of sequence reversal is seen in "hombre fuerte." In this case "hombre" (man) is followed by "fuerte" (strong). In English, these words would appear in reverse order to the Spanish equivalent.

"Ropa limpia" means "clean clothes." You will notice that "ropa" (clothes) appears first in sequence before "limpia" (clean). Examples of this phrase may occur is complete sentences like "El tiene ropa limpia." (He has clean clothes.) or "Ve usted la ropa limpia?" (Do you see the clean clothes?). As you can see, the sequence is changed from one language to the other.

Let us consider the words "cosa" (thing) and "buena" (good). The natural sequence when they appear together in English would be "good thing." The reverse order would be more natural in Spanish as seen in "cosa buena." Both words may be used to express complete ideas in sentences like "El amor es cosa buena." (Love is a good thing.) and "Odiar no es cosa buena." (That is not a good thing.)

"Mujer simpatica," said in the same sequence in English, is "woman nice." Naturally it is more logical to say "nice woman." Additional phrases below demonstrate reversals in sequence. A recording on 276-2762 says them.

IMPORTANT PHRASES:

Say "El es un hombre alto." (ehl ehs oon OHM-breh AHL-toh) for "He is a tall man."

Say "Son platos limpios." (sohn PLAH-tohs LEEM-pee-ohs) for "They are clean plates."

Say "Ella es una mujer simpatica." (EH-yah ehs OON-nah moo-HEHR seem-PAH-tee-kah) for "She is a nice woman."

Say "Usted tiene manos frias." (oo-STEHD tee-EE-nah MAH-nohs FREE-ahs) for "You have cold hands."

Say "Es un telefono blanco." (ehs oon teh-LEH-fon-ahon BLAHN-koh) for "It is a white telephone."

The San Diego Better Business Bureau handled more than 80,000 requests for help and information from local residents and firms during 1967. If you find it difficult to reach the Bureau by telephone — the lines are always kept busy — why not send a postcard with your inquiry to come to the Bureau in person. Complaints cannot be discussed on the telephone... they must be written, and you may find it easier to discuss your problem with a staff member in the office, 1608 Fourth ave., San Diego. The office is open to the public Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

AREA OBITUARIES

Services Held Friday For Emmett E. (Al) Marshall

Funeral services were last Friday afternoon at Greenwood Mortuary for Emmett E. (Al) Marshall, 50, of 6269 Cabaret st., San Diego, who died December 26 at Alvarado Hospital.

Marshall, a native of San Diego, lived in this area all his life and was active in community affairs during his long tenure as a Lemon Grove businessman.

A long-time member of the LG Lions Club and past president of that organization, Marshall spearheaded the project which eventually resulted in the construction of Greenspot Park in Lemon Grove.

The plan was originally to construct a swimming pool, and an association made up of members of local service clubs was formed to raise funds for the project under Marshall's leadership.

Later, when it was determined that costs for construction and maintenance of a swimming pool would be prohibitive, the project was abandoned and the land, which had been purchased for the pool, was used for the park. Marshall later led a Lions Club project which resulted in the construction of shuffleboard facilities at the park for senior citizens.

For many years, he owned the Village Liquor and Golf Shop locally, until failing health forced him to retire. He moved his family to Pine Valley after that, but recently moved into San Diego and opened Golfland Sporting Goods in Grossmont Center.

Interment was in Glen Abbey Memorial Park.

Survivors include his wife, Ada M. Marshall; a son, Robert E. Marshall, of San Diego; a daughter, Mrs. Carol L. Wyman, of Eureka, California; five sisters, Zenna Worthington, of Downey, California, Nancy Hart, of El Cajon, Lois McCrystal, of Laguna Beach, California, and Phyllis Helm and Barbara Bonham, both of Tucson, Arizona; and two grandchildren.

The family suggested contributions to the Heart Fund.

La Jolla Federal is through kidding around.

What kind of ad is this with a statement like that?

The kind that lays our cards right on the table.

Because if you're choosing a savings and loan, we think you'll want to know how the people there look at the business they're in.

Here's how we look at it:

What kind of free goodies are we giving away this year?

We're giving away exactly the same thing as last year.

No little goodies.

We respect your intelligence too much to expect you to open an account with us because we gave you a little potted palm, a bag of candy, a poster, and who-knows-what else.

In short, our attitude should disappoint no one but knick-knack collectors.

And no one ever earned interest on their knick-knacks.

Our cards. On the table.

Here's something we think you should know:

All federal savings and loan associations are pretty much the same. Does that surprise you?

It surprises a lot of people.

We all pay the same interest on insured savings. And charge just about the same interest for a loan.

And free services? Does this list sound familiar?...

Free copying service; free travelers' checks; free notary public; etc. etc.

That happens to be a list of some of ours.

Chances are, it's also a list of some of theirs.

So what is different about us? We thought you'd never ask.

To you from us.

We'll give you absolutely free of charge an honest, no baloney attitude.

In a nice way, of course.

We know you appreciate that, because a lot of you tell us so.

Better still, you become our customers. So many of you, we've grown from one office to three in less than a year.

And, too, we'll give you all the regular Savings and Loan things we discussed earlier.

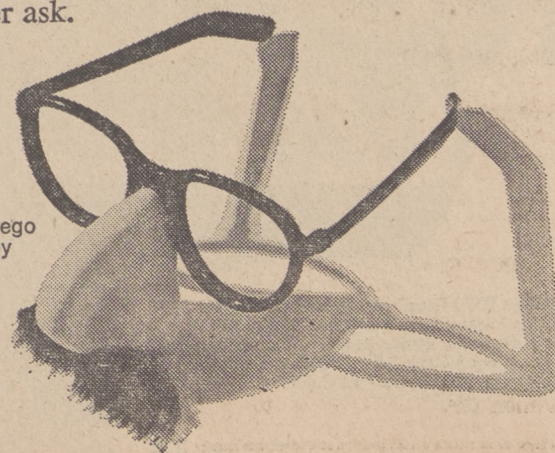

When you get right down to it, we think you'll choose a savings and loan because you like the way the people there do business.

So if you like most of what we've just said, let's get together.

You won't be disappointed.

Commissioner Urges Care With Chemicals

How you take care of your supplies of pesticides and other possible harmful household products may mean the difference between life and death for children, said Kenneth K. Little, Jr., San Diego County Agricultural Commissioner.

"A Food and Drug Administration report says that pesticides account for only a small percentage of reported cases of poisoning of children under five years of age, but the illness or death of even one child is too many," Little said.

Full or partially used pesticide containers should always be kept under lock and key, but even empty containers should not be left lying around unprotected, according to Little. Neither should harmful materials of any kind be put into other containers where they might be mistaken for food or soft drinks.

Little said homeowners are often confused about how to dispose of empty pesticide containers or materials they no longer wish to use. Pesticides should never be poured into a sink or toilet bowl, as this could carry pollution into areas where sewage flows. It is also dangerous to bury containers in the backyard or to burn them in a fireplace. The best method of disposal is to take the containers to an approved dump, such as the one at the Otay Refuse Disposal Area.

If this is a problem, the materials in small quantities can be taken to any office of the County Department of Agriculture-Weights and Measures where they will be kept safely until they can be disposed of in an approved dump.

Two More Whale Trips Scheduled

In spite of delay in receiving permission from the Mexican government to continue the Natural History Museum's week-long trips to Scammon's Lagoon to watch whales, the museum's four scheduled trips have filled up so that two additional trips have been added, according to Dr. William Burns, director.

The additional trips are scheduled for February 18 and February 25.

The whale-watching voyages, now in their third year, leave San Diego early Sunday mornings, sail all night and anchor off the west island of the San Benitos group. The entire day is spent on the island observing and photographing the large herds of Elephant Seals which come here to breed and raise their pups.

Late that same night the ship weighs anchor for Scammon's Lagoon, arriving the next morning.

Scammon's Lagoon is the world-famous breeding ground for the California Gray Whale which migrates 6,000 miles from the Arctic to the warm salty waters of the Lagoon and assembles in an estimated count of some 4,000 to court, mate, give birth to their calves, spy out, fluke, breach clear out of the water, and blow or spout within close camera distance for whale watchers.

Those who were unable to find a place on the first four trips will be pleased to know that two more have been added. For information, call the Natural History Museum, 232-9146.

160 Youngsters Seek Big Brothers

Big Brother Week is being marked in San Diego with a plea for men to volunteer to become a friend of a fatherless boy to help him grow into responsible manhood.

There are about 160 boys waiting to be matched with a Big Brother according to Dr. Carl H. Jepsen, president of San Diego Big Brothers.

The need for the program is that one out of ten families has no father in the home. San Diego Big Brothers caseload was increased 25% in 1972 — to 250 Little Brothers being served.

Men wishing to volunteer their services should contact Big Brothers at 861 Sixth ave., room 201, or call 234-9153.

Boy Bitten; Dog Sought

According to reports, the youth was running near his home when the dog, thinking the boy was chasing him, bit him. The dog was described as black and gray with some brown markings.

If the dog is seen, the Wards should be notified via 466-2698.

Printing Skills Taught In Free ROP Course

Mention the word "printer" to the average individual, and he generally conjures up the mental image of a round shouldered old man in a green eyeshade, holding a composing stick in his hand and peering intently into a dusty type case.

This "image" of the printing industry is changing, however, in a new graphic communications course being offered in Ramona this fall through the county's Regional Occupational Program. As a visitor to the course can see, tomorrow's counterpart to the stereotyped image of the printer is likely to be a mini-skirted young lady operating what appears to be an electric type writer.

Learning basic printing skills in the free ROP course at Ramona High School are high school students, out-of-school youth, and adults. To be eligible for admission, applicants must be residents of San Diego County and be eligible to attend a high school or adult school in the county.

The course is taught by Carl H. Swadell, former president and general manager of Swadell Lithographers, Inc., Escondido. It is directed toward developing specialized knowledge and skills through actual experience with modern equipment.

The course is conducted in a "Rotating Occupation Laboratory" which has been specially equipped with the latest typesetting, photographic, offset printing, and bindery equipment. All this is housed in a 60-foot trailer on the Ramona High School grounds.

Non-Registered Off-Highway Vehicle Users Face Penalty

About one out of twenty of the State's million off-highway vehicles have met the registration requirement according to the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The new law which became effective last July, shows that San Diego County is second to Los Angeles County in registrations to date.

For five months, San Diego County has registered 5,836 vehicles of which 4,560 were motorcycles. The rest were 4-wheelers.

In Los Angeles County, 13,397 registered of which 1,354 were 4-wheelers.

In the same period Orange County registered 5,266 in all categories and San Bernardino registered 1,627. Alpine County was lowest with 1 registration.

Director of Motor Vehicles Robert Cozens estimated there to be a million mini-bikes, rail bikes, motorcycles, dune buggies, snowmobiles and all terrain vehicles using public lands in California.

All of these should have been "identified" with a special DMV sticker plate by now, he said.

Registration fee is $15 for any part of two years ending July 1974, and $15 for each two years thereafter. Penalties range from $3 to $10 plus $15 for registration, according to R. J. Connelly, manager of the La Mesa office of DMV.

Proceeds are used for a recreation fund for off-highway vehicle facilities.

A variety of factors may be used in the selection of students for each class, such as personal interviews, recommendations from teachers and counselors, and the student's occupational goals. In most cases an applicant must be a senior in high school or be of employable age at completion of the course. Classes are strictly limited in size.

Students in ROP courses are trained for "entry-level" positions in various occupations which lack available trained manpower. Recent figures of the U. S. Labor Department indicate that the supply of trained graphics technicians will not catch up to the demand for at least another 30 years.

Silver of Carmel and Patrick Hallinan of San Francisco (Soledad Brothers case).

Four Students Vie For Soroptimists Award

Judges in this year's Soroptimist Club Citizenship Awards competition are expected to announce the winner from the Lemon Grove-Spring Valley area within the next few weeks.

Judging the competition are Dr. Robert Burnham, superintendent of the Grossmont Community College District; Luther Hussey, retired municipal court judge; and Kenneth Taylor, manager of the Campo-Conrad branch of the Bank of America.

In the competition this year are four students from Mt. Miguel and Monte Vista High Schools who were required to obtain letters of recommendation and fill out applications for the competition. Included in the applications were short essays describing each student's aspirations.

The winner will compete later with winners of surrounding clubs.

Ric Masten Appearance January 8

Ric Masten, Big Sur poet, songwriter and folksinger, will return to Grossmont College for a special appearance at 11 a.m., Monday in the Fine Arts Recital Hall. Presented by the college's Office of Community Services, Ric Masten will choose the songs he sings to fit the mood of the audience he is performing for.

He writes poems which he sometimes reads and other times sings to his music. During the past four years, he has visited hundreds of colleges, universities, churches and schools in almost every state in America. Under the sponsorship of the Unitarian Universalist Association and the Billings Lectureship, he conducts Sunday morning services, performs radio and television talk-shows and appears in assemblies and classrooms working with people of all ages.

A former artist and newspaper man, he now devotes his time to writing songs and singing them. He has recorded five albums, a book of poems and a book of words and music to some of his best-known poems.

The public is invited to hear some of the country's best-known folksingers perform.

'Ten-Speed' Club Plans Organizational Meeting Saturday

A group of high school sophomores in Lemon Grove are trying to start a "ten-speed" club locally.

Tom Fambrough, Jeff Wilson, and Hugh Willingham have called a meeting for January 6 at Lemon Grove Junior High School for anyone in the area interested in the club, dubbed "Roman Riders". Qualifications for membership require that each rider have lights and reflectors on his or her bike, that the bike be a ten-speed, and that members must be 13 or over.

Activities planned for the club include rallies and long rides, such as one to Jamul, picnics and regular meetings. The meeting will be at 3:30 p.m. in front of the school.

OPENS TONIGHT — Gail West Brown portrays the governor's daughter attracted to a charming, mysterious vagabond, Michael Smith, in the George M. Cohan melodrama The Tavern on stage at the Old Globe Theatre in Balboa Park, nightly except Monday, through February 4.

'The Tavern' Opens At Old Globe Tonight

On a stormy night in the past century, occupants of "The Tavern" are confronted with highway robbery, an escaped madman, a strange lost woman and romantic conflict in the George M. Cohan melodrama, originally performed fifty years ago.

The play will open a five week engagement this evening on stage at the Old Globe Theatre in Balboa Park.

Performances are scheduled nightly except Monday through February 4. Sunday matinees will be presented on January 7 and February 4. "The Tavern" is suitable for attendance by the entire family.

The sound of gunshots at midnight during a threatening snow storm prompts investigation by the stalwart tavern keeper. Without warning, a mysterious man enters, refusing to disclose his identity or destination. The secretive stranger introduces suspense to the simple surroundings.

Out of the storm, a lost woman appears unable to recall the reason for her presence in the territory. It is also revealed that a patient has escaped from a nearby hospital for the insane.

Ultimately, the state governor and his party arrive to announce that his family has been robbed by highwaymen on the way to the capitol. The sheriff is called upon to aid in the search for the true culprit in the vastly amusing, heart-pounding melodrama.

The leading role of the vagabond will be portrayed by Michael Smith. He appeared this fall in "Child's Play" for the Old Globe Theatre and last spring in "The Homecoming" at the Carter Centre Stage. Charles Knowlton plays the key role of the tavern owner with David Fennessy as his son. Susan Saunders and Russell Murphy are the hired hands. Julie Kavner will be seen as the strange lost woman.

The state governor will be played by Sid Ellison with Joan Davis as his wife, Gail West Brown as his daughter and Hud Freeze as his future son-in-law. Ron Groomes will be the sheriff with Errol Browne and William Carlton, Jr. as his deputies. A hospital attendant will be played by Jim Woolway.

Guest director for "The Tavern" is Ken Ruta. He was a leading actor during the Old Globe's 1971 National Shakespeare Festival as Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and as Antony in "Antony and Cleopatra."

The music was specially programmed by computer to include 450 water fountain and colored light formation changes. Each change in lights and fountains requires a separate, hand-punched IBM card to coincide with the beat of the music.

The show utilizes more than 12,000 gallons of water, nearly 400 colored lights and 190 fountain heads. Each fountain head is capable of providing from one to three different levels of water.

'Storm in Summer' Hits Heart—and Funnybone

by Max Goodwin

What does a 78-year old Jewish delicatessen owner have in common with a 10-year old black boy from New York's ghetto?

In Rod Serling's "Storm in Summer" playing now at San Diego's Off Broadway theatre — plenty.

Serling brings his people together when Rodney Bingley is given a two-week holiday in, of all places, New York's East Side Jewish ghetto. Never mind how he got there. That, and all the rest is filler material for the main theme and for the two main characters — Bingley and veteran actor Sam Jaffe.

A hostile black guest holidaying with an unwilling Jewish host is the situation. Common ground is antagonism: black vs. white; Jew vs. Gentile; age vs. youth; peevishness vs. hostility, and patience vs. temperance.

In the three-act play Serling teaches his black youngster that not only is there racial room for existence in this imperfect world but there is even room for love — even though the object is an elderly delicatessen owner who still mopes over the loss of his young son in World War II, 25 years ago.

Slowly emerging from the years of sorrowing as the youngster's hostility erodes Jaffe's envelope of self-pity, the two find commonality in their differences.

Rodney supplants the vision that was Jaffe's dead son and Jaffe emerges as a family-figure of the orphaned 10-year old Rodney. But they didn't recognize these needs until a summer storm of open hostility erupted and left the figures denuded of hatred, prejudices and distrust. What's left? Love and respect! A sterling lesson in sociology.

Interwoven in the mainstream of the play is a boy-loses — boy wins — girl secondary theme. It, too, carries the coloration of prejudice and bigotry. Edd Byrnes, of "77 Sunset Strip" and Patty McCormack, (a teevee and movie beauty) overcome racial problems to provide an "Abie's Irish Rose" climax to their effort.

Other players are rather inconsequential.

Of course, everyone knows Sam Jaffe who is really Dr. Zorba with Dr. Ben Casey on teevee.

Rodney Bingley is actually 12-years old. He all but outshone Jaffe in "Storm". The audience found itself trying to give him a standing ovation. Some did stand. He is near-famous for his teevee commercial appearances and for stints on the Bill Cosby show.

What about the show itself? Extremely entertaining! After the first act the production takes on muscle and becomes a blockbuster at the end. It shouldn't be missed.

Emotional response is the objective of good theatre and "Storm in Summer" provides that. It gets into the heart — and hits the funnybone.

Humor Seen In Chamber Operas

Chamber-Opera, a unique and delightful form of entertainment, will be presented by Grossmont College's Office of Community Services at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Fine Arts Recital Hall. Chamber-Opera is best described as a short work of an intimate and often comic nature. Two productions scheduled for presentation feature Tom and Phoebe Simmons with their newly-formed Simmons' Chamber-Opera Players.

"La Serva Padrona," by Pergolesi is 40-minutes of scheming and laughter with Serpina, the pert young servant of a rich old gentleman who cleverly attempts to change her title from "Miss" to "Mrs." and her position from "maid" to "mistress."

"The Telephone," by Menotti is a brief but humorous episode about love for three. Bob loves Lucy, Lucy loves to telephone and three is definitely a crowd.

Performing leading roles, the Simmons' are versatile entertainers, acting and playing musical instruments in addition to singing. Their productions include colorful, authentic period costumes with complete settings and artistic piano accompaniment.

The public is invited to enjoy an evening of unusual entertainment. There is no charge for admission.

Famed Violinist Shares Podium For Symphony

The San Diego Symphony Orchestra will present its first 1973 concert Monday and Tuesday at the Civic Theatre with the incomparable artistry of Yehudi Menuhin in the dual roles of guest artist and conductor. Sharing the podium will be Peter Eros, the Orchestra's principal guest conductor.

With the concert, Menuhin makes his San Diego debut. Eros returns to make his first San Diego appearance following an extensive guest conducting tour of the Netherlands, and the orchestra plays its first performances of certain literature from Bach and Mozart.

New York-born Menuhin made his debut at age seven with the San Francisco Orchestra, which led to his debut in Berlin at eleven, after which Einstein embraced the boy, declaring that he had "seen God."

The program opens with the Bach Violin Concerto in E major, conducted and performed by Menuhin. This is the first performance by the orchestra of this particular work.

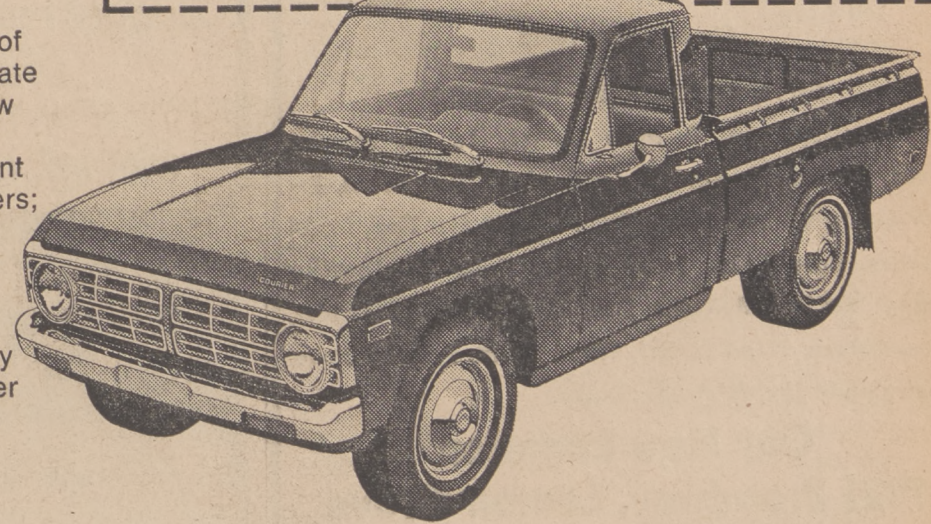

Mozart's Violin Concerto in A major, conducted by Eros with Menuhin as soloist, will also be a first performance by the Orchestra.

The concert is the only ones of the subscription series to be performed on Monday and Tuesday, due to Menuhin's availability. Tickets for the performances are $7, $6, $5.50 and $4.50 at Civic Theatre Box Office, all Metro agencies, Highlander and Sears' stores.

On Jan. 18 and 19, Eros will conduct an all-Orchestral concert with Beethoven's Symphony No. 4 in B flat major and Mahler's Symphony No. 1 in D major.

On Jan. 25 and 26, brilliant young pianist Roberto de Gaetano makes his San Diego debut.

Services Held for Eddie Leishman

It was the kind of morning Eddie Leishman loved. The air was cool and clean and the sun beamed from an unblemished sky.

It was the day destined to be for his funeral services and his memory was being revered by a large gathering of people he loved — and who loved him. Many were sports types. Which is to say that every profession has its type of adherents, without whom the end product would be meaningless.

It seemed strange that so much quietness could envelop 250,300 people dedicated to sports and whose very existence is otherwise nurtured by cheering of the fans.

It was indeed a solemn and sad interlude. As the services were intoned by the Rev. Charles McClain of the United Methodist Church of the Valley, each of those of the sports world gave thought to the things for which he remembered him best. These were pleasant thoughts, for Eddie Leishman was a lovable person. He was quiet. He was thoughtful, and his remarks were always kind and sincere.

His seat was directly behind mine in Padre press box. It was a pleasant way to obtain information regarding baseball. Just turn around and there was one of the most knowledgeable, and certainly the most pleasant, gentleman in all sports.

Services were held Tuesday morning at Greenwood and most of those who overcrowded the facility left with a feeling of emptiness when the ceremony was finished.

Ten persons, like Jerry Coleman, Al Coupez, Nate Colbert, Scotty Harris, Emmett Ashford, and others served as pallbearers.

Sportscasters-Sportswriters Assn. of San Diego met Wednesday to set up a scholarship in his name.

Eddie Leishman, a good husband and father, and general manager of the San Diego Padres, left the people he loved at the age of 62.

Monte Vista Eyes Loop Wrestling Title

Mount Miguel and Monte Vista wrestling teams are readying themselves for the league season opener tomorrow night.

Rated 1-2 in the Grossmont League and 2-3 in the county this season, the two Spring Valley teams tuned up for the loop season last week by taking part in the Grossmont College Invitational Tournament.

Monte Vista participated on the varsity level and completely devastated all opponents, racking up 118½ points, nearly twice as many as second place Helix, which finished with 59½ points.

Monte Vista is the team to beat — an almost impossible mission — with the likes of Rusty Lockwood, Dave Broadwolf, Tom Varshock, Matt Taylor, Robbie Hudson, and Gary Uyeda on the mats.

Meanwhile, Mt. Miguel, rated second in the league despite what coach Ned Blass calls a rebuilding year, took part in the tournament on the jayvee level, claiming the title with 119½ points, nine points better than second place Monte Vista.

Gulls Weekend Games Focus on Second Place

Two home games in a row face the Gulls Friday and Saturday with Saturday night designated as "Puck Night".

On Friday, the Gulls face the Seattle Totems, a team that pulled itself together after finishing last in the 1971-72 season.

Saturday the Gulls play against the always tough Denver Spurs. The two games will give the Gulls a chance to take over second place — depending on what the second place Phoenix Roadrunners do.

All youngsters, 14 years and under, will be given a puck on Saturday.

Faceoff for both games will be 8 p.m.

SDG&E Sets Budget For Undergrounding

San Diego Gas & Electric Company has budgeted $3,740,000 for 1973 to replace existing overhead electric lines with underground facilities.

The amount is $591,000 more than the $3,149,000 that was budgeted for 1972.

Funds budgeted for 1973 will be allocated for work in cities and unincorporated county areas within the company's service territory on the basis of the number of electric customers in each area of jurisdiction.

Prep Hoopsters Gird For Loop Play Tomorrow

Mount Miguel and Monte Vista basketball teams completed the holiday tournament schedule Saturday and are now preparing for tomorrow's league openers.

Monte Vista will host Granite Hills at 8 p.m., while Mt. Miguel will mix it up with Grossmont at Mt. Miguel.

Monte Vista claimed ninth place in the Bonita Vista Baron-Optimist Tournament by knocking off El Cajon, 64-48 to run the Monarch record for pre-season games to 8-6.

Mount Miguel dropped a one-pointer to Clairemont, 43-42, and was forced to settle for sixth place in the University Tournament. The Matadors are now 8-6.

The two Spring Valley schools are expected to battle it out for second place in the Grossmont League this season, with only Helix rated better.

Monte Vista has the steady shooting of Rick Baker and Richard Ridgway to lead the team, which has been one of the outstanding defensive squads in the county during the pre-season.

Mt. Miguel relies on the excellent scoring of Mark Dobransky and a well-balanced attack consisting of Steve Solomon, Gary Klusman and Jess Jenner.

A third team that will vie for the second place honors is Grossmont. The Hillers boast a balanced attack but are young.

The remaining positions will be up for grabs, but Granite Hills looks like a solid choice for fifth place, followed by El Cajon, Santana, and El Capitan.

Enlistment Options Program Expanded

Young men and women who plan to enter the Marine Corps will now find it easier to select a job to their liking since the recent expansion of the Marine Corps Enlistment Options Programs.

Changes, which went into effect Monday, were made to accommodate young applicants who demonstrate an interest and aptitude in a specific job category. In many cases, they will be able to select the exact job specialty.

Additionally, a recruit may be appointed to the rank of private first class if he has completed the equivalent of one semester at a nationally accredited college with at least a "C-plus" grade average.

The measure is not a relaxation of recruiting standards for the Marine Corps, according to officials, but an effort to train, assign, and utilize Marines in job areas where they may have prior experience and enthusiasm. The measure does not downgrade the requirement for enlistees to be trained in combat effectiveness and readiness.

Under the new standards, qualified applicant's will be able to choose either ground or aviation jobs.

Ground is sub-divided into five programs that include combat arms, combat support, supply-logistics and disbursing, administration, and mechanical/electrical. The field is broken down further to name specific jobs.

In aviation, three areas are offered to qualified applicants; either aviation technology, aircraft maintenance and ordnance, and aviation administration-support.

Women applicants are included in a number of the ground and aviation options.

'Youth Movement' Seen To Make Presence Felt In Andy Williams Open

A "Youth Movement," out of whose membership the Arnold Palmers, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Players of the future are expected to develop, may steal the show from more established names at the sixth annual Andy Williams San Diego Open here at Torrey Pines Feb. 15-18.

Seven players all in their twenties were ranked in the top 20 for 1972, three of them in the first ten in money earnings and exemption points. They are, in sequence on the earnings list, Grier Jones, fourth; Jerry Heard, fifth; Lanny Wadkins, 10th; Bobby Mitchell, 11th; Hale Irwin, 13th; Jim Jamieson, 15; and Johnny Miller, 17th.

All are expected to compete in the AWSDO and in its Celebrity Pro-Am Feb. 13, 1.

Jones, 26, of Wichita, Kansas, won two major events on the 1972 tour, the Hawaii Open and the Robinson Fall Classic. His $140,177 in 1972 earnings contrasted dramatically with the $30,929 that gave him a 72nd place finish in 1971.

Heard, a 25-year-old out of Visalia, actually made his big start in 1971 when he finished seventh with $112,389. The next year he advanced two notches with $137,198, winning both the Florida Citrus and the Colonial Opens.

Wadkins, the junior of the group at 23, is considered a shoo-in for Rookie of the Year honors. The Winston-Salem, North Carolina sensation scored his first career win in the Sahara, adding $27,000 toward his 1972 winnings of $116,616.

Senior of the group along with Jamieson, the 29-year-old Mitchell of Danville, Va., moved up from 26th in 1971 to his present eminent ranking with 1972 earnings of $113,719.

Irwin, 27, of Joplin, Mo., was 13th on the money list in both 1971 and 1972, but his earnings of $111,539 were over $12,000 more than the previous year. He served notice on the AWSDO field by finishing second to Paul Harney last year.

A Moline, Illinois resident, Jamieson went from number 63 on the earnings list in 1971 to 15. His victory in the Western Open added considerably to his 1972 winnings of $109,532.

Miller, 25, the San Francisco product now attached to Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, moved up one place in 1972 standings with a 1972 haul of $99,348 including first in the Heritage Classic.

Tom Weiskopf, a mere 30 years of age, won the first AWSDO back in 1968 and finished way up in sixth place in 1972 earnings with $129,422. He must be considered a threat to Nicklaus, et al, along with J. C. Snead, 31, who finished 22nd on the money list with $87,435.

Of course, Nicklaus is only 32 — but then that's another story.

Blood Collection Center Set Up At Grossmont

The Grossmont Hospital Women's Auxiliary, in conjunction with the San Diego Blood Bank, is offering another community service. Grossmont Hospital has offered its auditorium to set up a "Bloodmobile" facility several times a year so that a blood collecting center may be established in East County to meet a community need.

There is a dire need of whole blood from volunteer donors and plans are offered by the Blood Bank which will benefit the donors. It is open to the public and everyone is invited to set up reserves for his family or friend. Minimum age is eighteen.

Approximately 100 businesses and factories in La Mesa and El Cajon have received pamphlets regarding the programs. Any company not yet contacted may call the Grossmont Hospital Auxiliary office or the Community Relations office at the Blood Bank. A Blood Reserve Fund for a minimum of 20 employees and a Blood Assurance Plan for individual families if less than 20 employees are involved have been formed. Over 100 employees of Grossmont Hospital will become donors January 9. From 50 to 150 patients a month receive blood transfusions from the Blood Bank at Grossmont Hospital.

Two dates have been set: Tuesday, Jan. 9, from 8 a.m. until noon and Tuesday, Jan. 23, from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. for those who wish to come after work. No appointments are needed at this location.

The Grossmont Hospital auditorium is directly North of the hospital building and parking is ample.

Spring Valley Youth Is First Born Of 1973

A Spring Valley infant was San Diego County's first new person to enter 1973 when he was born just 11 minutes after horns and firecrackers announced the arrival of the new year at Kaiser Hospital in La Mesa.

Gregory James Kida, first born child of Mr. and Mrs. James Kida, of 2828 Bancroft dr., space 2, Spring Valley, weighed in at 6 pounds, 9 ounces, and was 20 inches long.

Kida, who beat out San Diego Jaley Suzanne Juleson for first born honors by seven minutes, also held a big margin on the first arrival at Grossmont Hospital, Matthew T. Stark, of Hemet, who was born at 7:36 a.m.

New Animal Shelter

SAN DIEGO (CNA) — Improvements in animal shelters worth an estimated $327,000 have been approved by the county Board of Supervisors. The major project is for a new South County shelter that will be built near Spring Valley at the confluence of three freeways (5, 125, and 157) at a cost of about $250,000.

Approval was twice delayed by Supervisor Jim Bear who wanted some special details

Had to Leave; Bengtson And Denman Fired

The 1973 Chargers will hardly be recognizable if compared with the team that started the 4-9-1 1973 season.

To add to the switches, trades and releases that have underlined a disappointing season are more names.

Fired is Phil Bengtson, director of pro talent who was released temporarily to the New England Patriots for a month to serve as interim coach.

Also fired was Tom Denman, equipment manager, who has been with the team since it was formed in Los Angeles in 1960.

Scheduled to be traded is the Chargers amiable, perennial star quarterback, John Hadl.

Hadl, in a report to the press, was agreeable to a change. One report had it that he and the team's offensive coordinator, Bob Schnelker, did not see eye to eye.

Hadl has served the Chargers for ten of his eleven years as a pro.

Two rumors seem to have more substance than a variety of others: that Hadl will go to Green Bay, and that the Chargers will acquire quarterback Bill Munson from the Detroit Lions. Munson has not started a game since 1970.

NOx Control Device Plan Announced

The California Air Resources Board has adopted a schedule for mandatory installation of oxides of nitrogen exhaust control devices on light-duty 1966-70 model year motor vehicles.

The program is in two phases. Under the first, which begins June 1 in San Diego County, installation will be required only upon change of ownership and registration and upon first California registration.

Millions of vehicles will be affected in the second phase of the program, under which all 1966-70 model year light-duty vehicles not already fitted or exempted will be subject to a schedule of installation, based on the last arabic number in the license plate.

In July, 1973, all vehicles with plates whose last arabic number is "1" must have an exhaust control device installed; all those with plates whose final digit is "2" in August, and so forth, until the schedule is completed in April, 1974, when vehicles with plates whose last number is zero or having only letters must have the installation.

The devices are designed to reduce emissions of oxides of nitrogen, one of the two primary ingredients of photochemical smog. 1966-70 model vehicles first sold in California were factory equipped with hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide exhaust controls.

Hydrocarbon and oxides of nitrogen react in sunlight to form photochemical smog. Each vehicle must obtain a window sticker issued by motor vehicle inspection and installation stations indicating either that the device has been installed or that the vehicle is exempt.

On-road enforcement of the program will be by the California Highway Patrol.

Showers Dampen Area

Four one-hundredths of an inch of rain — the first of the new year, was registered early Wednesday morning bringing the season's total to 6.56 inches since July 1.

Last year at this time the total was 4.31 inches, according to R. L. Marcon, meteorologist at the local fire station.

At press time Wednesday the sky was overcast with more rain forecast.

NEW BANK PRESIDENT — James F. Mulvaney, 50, executive vice president of the U.S. National bank, was elected president, it was announced this week by C. Arnhold Smith, chairman of the board, who relinquished the presidential post to Mulvaney. Smith will continue as chairman. Mulvaney, an attorney, joined the bank's legal staff in 1955 and became vice president in 1960. He was elected executive vice president in 1964 and to the board in 1970. He has been a frequent visitor to the Lemon Grove area, attending Chamber of Commerce and service club functions usually as speaker.

At the same time Richard P. Wollman, 43, was elected as chairman of the bank's executive committee and vice chairman of the board of directors. In a collateral announcement, Smith said that the bank had reached $835 million in deposits in December and set a goal of $1 billion by mid-year 1974.

State Senate Plans Scrapped by Boney

For whatever signs he read, Henry Boney until next week, County Supervisor of the Second District, took himself out of the race for the 38th state Senate seat.

Last month he announced that he had personally ordered a survey in depth to test his popularity against 80th District Assemblyman Republican John Stull, who dropped his hat in the Senate ring in November.

The Senate seat became vacant this week when Clair Burgener, R-Rancho Santa Fe, resigned to take his newly won post as U. S. Representative.

Boney had contended that half the votes in the State Senate district were in his Supervisorial district and that the survey he commissioned Dr. Oscar Kaplan to conduct, indicated that he could win but it would take "adequate financing with a hard-fought campaign."

After talking to party leaders here, Boney said, he became convinced that it would be too disruptive to the Republican party to have a hard-fought campaign. A campaign split might result which would increase a Democrat winning the post.

The only other candidate so far is an Escondido housewife Iris Sankey, a Democrat. It is her first race.

Stull, who received Boney's threat to run with a calmness that led some observers to opine that Boney's candidacy was aimed at discouraging another candidate from entering the race.

Stull called Boney a "distinguished public servant" when notified that Boney had decided to drop from the race.

Boney indicated that he may run for a directorship on the State Board of Equalization in 1974 for the seat now held by John Lynch, a Fresno Democrat. He said Republican leaders had promised support for him if he runs.

Stull has not made his formal announcement but he said he would as soon as Gov. Reagan set the date for the primary. This is believed to be March 6. A candidate winning more than 50% of the votes would be elected. If no one candidate achieved this, the top vote getter from each party would face a run-off. Possible, but not probable, two candidates on one party could get 49% and 48% of the total vote, with 3% going to the opposition. 49% would run off against 3%.

High-coverage, holiday drunk driving activity has paid off, according to CHP Patrolman Bob Barrett, one of the Accident Reduction Team (ART) members assigned to the Lemon Grove area.

Accident total in San Diego was cut from 867 in December 1971 to 727 (unofficial) for December 1972. Possibly another dozen reports can show up — mostly from back country areas, he said.

The accident rate is normally 450-500 a month, records show.

The Patrol went on an alert basis just before Christmas with funds provided by federal grant. 75-85% of CHP personnel were involved in high activity for 100% coverage.

Instructed to remove drunk drivers from the road, Patrolmen in December made 703 drunk-driving arrests — a record. In 1971, 517 was the total.

From Christmas through New Year's eve, 167 drunk driving arrests were made, Barrett said.

Overcrossings affected by this project are the Sweetwater Springs blvd. overcrossing of Route 94 in the Spring Valley area; the Upas st. and Kearny st. pedestrian crossings of Route 163, and the Ralene st. overcrossing of Interstate 805 in the San Diego area.

Bids will be opened January 25 in Los Angeles. Approximately $36,000 is available for the project.

Nominations Made For CoC

Chuck Winters, owner, of Lucky Yamaha, is an aggressive businessman who could become a fine leader. He has been responsive to local projects and would make a good board member.

Danny Cornan, co-owner of the Horseshoe Tavern, is a longtime member of the community and the chamber and has supported local projects, including his sponsorship of an Old Time Days golf tournament two years ago.

Ballots must be returned by Jan. 22.

The election of a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer will be held at the January 25 board meeting.

A request was made by letter to the County Board of Supervisors to name the planned off-ramp at Costabella Lemon Grove Avenue.

The request already had the sanction of the County Engineer, and it is probable the request will be honored. As it is now, only a short-block stem of Costabella remains on the south side of 94, it having been cut off when the freeway was built.

In another report, Mrs. Bernadine Southard, who also represents the Lemon Grove Soroptimist club, revealed plans for installing flags in the center dividers — when they are installed as part of the long-promised Broadway improvement.

supply funds for a proposed park in Lemon Grove as well as for landscaping planned in conjunction with Broadway improvements.

He has been disappointed with delays in the formulation of a general plan for Lemon Grove, work which is being done by the planning association.

Dorman said that he is hopeful that the plan will soon be completed so many of the community goals can be implemented.

He would like to see more input from the community in the planning process as well as a closer relationship between the town's service clubs. He also indicated a hope that the new supervisor from this district, Dick Brown, of El Cajon, will be as responsive to the town's needs as his predecessor, Henry Boney.

Two things that may cause problems for the community in the future are improper or undesirable land use and a possible lack of financing for local schools.

U. S. airlines are expected to haul 13 million passengers in 1972 as compared to 123.5 million the previous year.

Kidney Machine Keeps Lemon Grove Mother Of Five Alive

by Max Goodwin

Here is a chance to bone up on your arithmetic.

It gives you a chance to count your blessings.

It is a vignette of the Lemon Grove family of Mike Simpson, at 2073 El Prado st. In April, it was a happy, large family with normal problems, and interest centered on the home.

All the elements are still there except all eyes now are on a machine at Scripps Hospital.

It is a $25,000 kidney machine. Without it, the wife and mother, Midge Simpson, would not be alive. She would have left behind Karen, 16; Jan, 15; Deeann, 13; Michael, 4; and Shelley, 1. And of course, old faithful, Mike, her husband.

Midge, a pretty, optimistic woman of 34, was doing her housework this spring when it happened. She suffered a complete renal failure which meant that her kidneys would not take the impurities from her blood as they do in normal humans.

She first went to University of California Medical Center for a treatment called hemodialysis in which a tube was inserted through her stomach and her kidneys washed. This was a 4-day-a-week treatment each week. It was found that the ailment was not reversible. Then a transplant operation followed in which both of her kidneys were replaced. This failed. For 5 months she was in the intensive care unit.

In September she was transferred to Scripps Hospital where she was put on the kidney machine. In this treatment all of her blood is drained from her body and cleaned as it passes through the machine. Her weight had dropped to 68 pounds before her condition was stabilized.

Now Midge depends on the machine for her life.

Three times a week, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays she spends 6½ hours each of the days on the kidney machine. First, a pint of blood drained off to start the machine, then her blood courses through it. Then she is free to go home.

At first she was 75% incapacitated and her weight dropped to 68 pounds. But her strength is gradually returning. She now weighs 72 pounds, fixes her own breakfast, bathes herself, reads and watches teevee during the day, and keeps tabs on the family.

Her liquid intake is limited to 4 glasses of water a day and the hardship comes in hot, dry weather.

The kids are doing a swell job running the house, she says.

Karen, 16, manages to keep active in high school and runs the house for her father. At school she is helping to produce the Mt. Miguel Year Book and she keeps her grades up. After school she is a "box boy" at Bradshaw Market for 8 hours a week, fixes meals and runs family errands in the family car. She took driver's ed. at school and got her license when her mother became ill. Deeann is on the Palm Junior High School Honor List with a high "A". Jan has a "B" average. The other youngsters help, too, within limits of their ability while dad works two jobs to keep things going.

Mike Simpson is a self-employed commercial sign painting contractor and designer. Recently he took over a delivery route here for the Daily Californian in addition to his profession.

Midge's 6½ hour treatments on the kidney machine costs $615 each. In November the bill was $12,800. Also in November came another crisis. Midge's brave heart filled with fluid and for 19 days she carried a tube in her chest to drain the fluid off. She is recovering from that setback now.

All of the family's resources has long since gone.

Now help comes from the Kidney Foundation and the State Health Department. Lucky, too. Few families could carry the current $6,000 a month cost — amounting to $72,000 a year when no other medical problems crop up.

The family is still happily optimistic. Mom's still here and watching the family grow.

Any family with an idea of helping is urged to consider willing their kidneys to the Kidney Foundation and donating blood to the Blood Bank.

Horticulturist's Haven Offered By Quail Gardens County Park

The Dawn Redwood, a tree thought to have become extinct after flourishing throughout North America and Asia 100 million years ago, is alive and well in San Diego County. Along with a myriad of other rare and exotic plants, a prime specimen of the Dawn Redwood is displayed for the appreciation of all at Quail Botanical Gardens, a specialized unit of the San Diego County Department of Parks and Recreation. The thirty-acre regional park consists of an informal arrangement of subtropical flora with a rustic, naturalistic effect.

"Most County-financed parks are considered to be 'regional' rather than local or community parks. They supplement and support park systems of the 13 cities," said Lloyd T. Lowrey, director of County Parks and Recreation.

Quail Gardens is a place for aesthetic enjoyment, for erudite observation of the plant world, a peaceful haven from the fast pace of urban living or freeway driving, as well as a host of botanical information of a visual nature for the home gardener or potential commercial grower.

No fires, no pets, and no frolicking are allowed, according to Lowrey. The most obvious reason is the fragile environment of the area. Lowrey said that botanists estimate that Quail Gardens is so finely climatically balanced that a move of a fraction of a mile in any direction might adversely affect the growth of some of the plant specimens.

The park is located just off Interstate 5 in Encinitas. To get there, take the Encinitas eastbound turnoff from I-5, then proceed to the left on Quail Gardens dr. for about half a mile.

The canyon portion of the park is so situated on an eastward facing slope that it never receives frost. Ginger, gigantic birds-of-paradise, and Australian tree ferns grow here without wind machines or man-supplied heat. Lowrey said that there are hopes to install a spray-irrigation system to turn this small area into a virtual rain forest.

Other projects, such as a stream in a typical arroyo await either a monetary donation or other means of financing. An Australian-New Zealand section is slowly taking shape near the celebrated and rare Dawn Redwood.

"This interesting tree is a cutting from a seedling sent from China in the 1940's," said Lowrey. "Until discovered in 1944, the tree was believed extinct. Botanists had viewed only the fossilized remains, but in that year, a Chinese botanist discovered a small stand in a remote mountain range in central China."

"Unable to classify his find, he forwarded branches, spores, and seeds to scientific centers for identification. Unbeliev-

'Abandoned' Vehicle Leads To Marijuana Charges For LG Man

The Check of an apparently abandoned vehicle by Sheriff's deputies resulted in the arrest of its owner on charges of possession of marijuana last week.

According to reports from the Sheriff's Department, the vehicle was observed parked in a remote area last Thursday night.

When deputies approached the vehicle, Bruce A. Kellison, 19, of 1390 Lime st., Lemon Grove contacted them and said that he was the owner of the car.

Deputies then questioned the subject and ran a routine name check on him and it was revealed that he was on probation and had given up his rights regarding search and seizure. A search of the car netted a plastic bag containing marijuana.

ably, they reported that the Dawn Redwood still survived. "Propagated from this grove, the species is no longer endangered, being scattered throughout both hemispheres in temperate regions. San Diego's specimen is a beautiful, thriving example of this deciduous ancestor of our evergreen sequoias," he said.

Other examples of Quail stand of chaparral, the bromeliads' appeal are its native had display gathered from the far-reaches of the Americas and cared for by the San Diego Bromeliad Society, a magnificent array of cacti and euphorbias, and the strange appearing proteas with their plastic-like blooms.

Lowrey said that as with any garden, early spring is the best time to visit Quail Gardens. The flowering plants are then at their prime with spectacular masses of exotic blooms. Any time, however, is a good time to see the gardens because the diversity of types means that some are at their peak throughout every month of the year, he said.

"Out-of-area visitors who desire to combine a day's outing at Quail Gardens with a cook-out or relief valve for the physical exuberance of children, Glen County Park is just a couple of miles away," Lowrey said.

The late Mrs. Ruth Baird Larabee donated the original 26 acres of the park to the County from her Encinitas estate, to which the Eckes family added six acres, some still undeveloped although planned.

Through a unique arrangement, the Quail Gardens Foundation, a group of public-spirited horticulturists, acts as advisor to the County on matters concerning plantings in the parks. The members also serve as tour guides and have prepared slide shows for presentation to clubs and organizations.

PROBLEMS LEARNED — Senior Gardener P. J. Miller, center, shows Jeff Duncan, left, and Mike Tucker how a parasite attacks a giant rubber tree. The boys were visiting Quail Botanical Gardens. The San Diego County regional park contains hundreds of rare and exotic subtropical plants in a rustic, informal arrangement. There is no admission charge for the park which is open from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily.

Highway Patrol Seeks Qualified Applicants

Young men who meet the qualifications were invited this week by Commissioner Walter Pudinski to apply for posts with the California Highway Patrol.

"We are especially interested in obtaining applications from those of minority ancestry," Pudinski said, "for in the past only a handful of blacks, Mexican-Americans, Indians and Orientals have volunteered to join the Patrol."

Starting monthly pay is $905 with periodic merit increases up to $1048. Applicants must be high school graduates — or the equivalent — 21 to 31 years old, a minimum of 68 inches tall, and in good physical condition.

Applications must be filed with the State Personnel Board prior to February 3, 1973, for the written examination which is scheduled March 3. Applications are available from any Highway Patrol, State Personnel Board or Department of Human Resources Development office.

Individuals who apply will receive identical consideration, the Commissioner said, but the Patrol "will begin an intensive program today aimed at getting the word to minority group members."

Seventy-seven traffic officers stationed throughout California will devote much of their time working with civic, church and youth groups in areas of high minority residence seeking applicants who meet the criteria.

Pudinski said he hopes the recruiting campaign will disprove the assumption that very few minority members are interested in law enforcement as a career. "As far as I am concerned, it is far more likely that they think the Patrol is not interested in them," he declared, "and I intend to prove this is untrue."

Why is she working and attending school at the same time?

Barbara confides that she is really a self-sufficient person, or at least would like to be, and wants to contribute to her own future. She said that she would like to attend an out-of-state college after graduating from Grossmont, and out-of-town schools are much more expensive for tuition and living expenses.

Working has had no effect on her grades, either. After compiling a 3.8 grade point average in high school, she is currently keeping her college grades at about the same level.

Sometime between now and when the Miss Lemon Grove applications become available later this year, she is hoping to be able to contact potential candidates for the title and explain what the contest is all about.
